

What we're watching

NATIONAL POST January 11, 2012

WEDNESDAY, JAN. 11

Addiction, foster care, missing women - dire subjects all, and all equally ignored in Canadian drama programming. Thankfully there is at least one homemade drama that's willing to tackle the issues facing aboriginal Canadians, as Blackstone returns for its second season. The Gemini-winning series, one of APTN's top-rated programs, follows the lives of residents of the fictional Blackstone Indian Reserve, and features a wealth of homegrown talent, including Michelle Thrush, Carmen Moore and Nathaniel Arcand. Although it can be too intense at times, the sharp drama deserves a wider audience, even if it is all the way up the dial.

- Season Two of Blackstone premieres at 9 p.m. on APTN.
