Thanks to everyone who took the time during the Christmas holidays to cast your vote in 10 categories in our annual TV Ehwards. Some shows lead from the very beginning while other programs snuck in to take their category in the end.

Here are the winning shows in each category, with the votes and percentage of votes each show had:

The Police Surgeon Award for Best Canadian Medical Drama

Saving Hope (686 votes, 62 per cent)

The Seeing Things Award for Best Canadian Crime Drama

Blackstone (715 votes, 41 per cent)

The Quentin Durgens, MP, Award for Best Canadian Historical Drama

X Company (1,700 votes, 46 per cent)

The Beachcombers Award for Best Canadian Family Drama

Heartland (1,637 votes, 72 per cent)

The Starlost Award for Best Canadian Sci-Fi/Fantasy Series

Lost Girl (3,634, 49 per cent)

The King of Kensington Award for Best Canadian Comedy Series

Young Drunk Punk (698 votes, 41 per cent)

The Wayne & Shuster Award for Best Canadian Sketch Comedy Series

Still Standing (1,161 votes, 50 per cent)

The Bastard Offspring Award for the Crossover You Most Want to See

Saving Hope-Motive (298 votes, 32 per cent)

The Reimagination Award for The Show You'd Like to See Brought Back

Due South (297 votes, 31 per cent)

Shows that you SHOULD watch, but you DON'T watch, but you still don't want them to go away

The Nature of Things (380 votes, 37 per cent)

Check out the final tally in all of the categories; we'll discuss the results in Tuesday's podcast.
